Broadening our Horizons

Skyway is setting its sights on the international horizon – View of the Skyway trackless machine in Monteveltro with the Dublin horizon and the Aviva stadium in the background.

At Skyway, we are always on the lookout for new opportunities, new ventures, new products, new services and new horizons for developing and expanding our company and our expertise.

In 2010, we worked on a number of projects outside Ireland and already, all the indications are that the Skyway logo will feature on other projects in other overseas locations in 2011.

Our qualifications and our expertise are well up to international standards. And with completed projects in England, Scotland, Wales, Spain and Germany, we are looking forward to expanding our horizons in the coming

Proudly Looking Up to a Challenging Future

There is no question about it, these are challenging times for all of us. It's at times like these when 'quality' and 'service' are hugely important to the welfare of a company.

These are two areas which Skyway has always held in top priority and over the years we have invested heavily in developing our skills, our products and services in these key areas for success.

The results have been hugely positive for both our company and our customers alike:

Our customers have received a quality of service which is second to none anywhere, backed with a level of engineering expertise and a 'Safety at Heights' record that we are all very proud of.

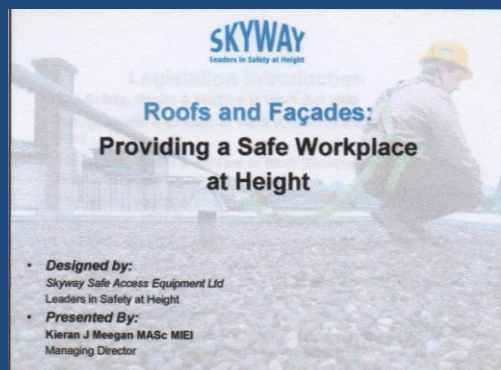

While Skyway has continued to grow and expand our services both at home and overseas, our challenge for the coming year is to continue our track record of growth by offering our clients the best service at height available anywhere. We feel we are ideally positioned to meet that challenge.

Danger is always about – don't take risks while working at height!

Rofer awarded €1.6m after brain injury fall

A roofer who suffered a brain injury when he fell through a roof-light, yesterday got €1.6m in High Court damages.

Carl Cunningham (29) of Church Road, East Wall, Dublin, plunged 12ft in the accident, which happened on July 5th, 2004, when he was working on the roof of Loreto Abbey Secondary School, Dalkey, Co. Dublin.

It was alleged the defendants failed to have sufficient regards for his safety and provided a dangerous workplace.

Irish Independent – Friday 19 November 2010

Worker dies in fall from roof

A man died yesterday after falling from a roof of a chicken plant.

The victim hadn't been named by last night, pending notification of his family and other relatives.

It is understood, however, that he is from the West of Ireland and had been working for the Western Brand chicken plant in Ballyhaunis, Co. Mayo, for a number of years.

The scene of the accident at the company plant at Knock Road, Ballyhaunis, was sealed off as Gardai began a preliminary investigation into the accident, which occurred at around 1.50pm. The Health and Safety Authority is also investigating.

The low down...

on what's happening at Skyway

At this year's NISO Annual Conference & Awards in October 2010 - Skyway was up there at the top, in the Highly Commended Category, with national and international names such as: ESB, B/E Aerospace UK, PepsiCo Ireland. Next year we're aiming even higher – so you can always be 100% assured of the highest safety systems and services with Skyway.

In November 2010, Skyway were delighted to be informed that they were nominated as Finalists in the Small Firms Association National Small Business Awards to be held in March 2011. We wait with bated breath for the results of these awards!

Our Health & Safety Officer, Darryl Ratty, B.Sc (Qual. Man) (Hons), Dip (Mech. Eng) has recently completed his Masters in Environmental, Health & Safety Management in Athlone IT. His masters thesis entitled "An Investigation of Methods used for Reducing Suspension Trauma" is particularly relevant to the 'Work Safely at Height' industry!

Looking for some information on Skyway's products and services, then call our Sales & Marketing Executive, Ryan McKeever B.Sc (Hons). Ryan completed his B.Sc. Business and Management at DIT, Aungier Street, Dublin 8 in 2010.
